Enjoy an evening with aviation historian/author Barbara Schultz discussing her third book, Flying Carpets, Flying Wings. Presentation includes 90+ slides to enhance a historical perspective of Moyer Stephens' 50 year involvement in aviation. Listed below are some of the areas covered in the presentation:

- Early flying in southern California - Clover, Rogers, DeMille, Chaplin and Grand Central Airports - in Standard, Jenny, and Thomas Motor Scouts.
- Moyer's association with Howard Hughes, Alan Hancock, Ballantine, Northrop, Clark, Rumm, Brown, and many other notable aviators: flying trimotors for Lockheed, YAT, and T & WA.
- Piloting a Stearman C-28, nicknamed the Flying Carpet, around the world for author Richard Halliburton in 1931-1932. This is the first factual narrative of that flight based on airplane logbooks, original maps, and letters home from Moyer to his parents.
- The forming of Northrop Corporation in 1939 and test flights of the NCMA, NMA, Black Widow, and other bombing prototypes.

Presentations on Barbara's other books or a combination of projects is also possible.

Editor's Message

I visited Camarillo airport which has recently completed an amazing picnic area in front of the Waypoint Café, which is also one of the best GA airport restaurants in California.

Sitting area with tables for picnics in the background

Play area for kids with tower and runway

Notice that the EAA Chapter has a sign that lets the public and other pilots know about EAA Chapter 723.

Pressed into the sidewalk. I love the theme "Aviation Noise, The sound of Freedom."

Camarillo is a vibrant General Aviation airport. This is an example of what we could do at Paso Robles if we all got together and pooled our resources.
